

1. Sharon McDaid

Creating and painting from her studio/gallery outside Camdonagh, artist Sharon is largely inspired by her ever-changing surroundings in the beautiful Inishowen Peninsula. Sharon who works primarily on canvas with oil, produces contemporary and distinctive artworks. Suggestive mark-making and illustrative storytelling enable her to create artworks that leave something to the viewer's imagination. Sharon's work can be found in many leading galleries across Ireland & UK where her collections are widely sought after.

2. Adam Rory Porter

I've always loved the creative arts. From entering the Texaco School art competition as a child, to studying Art, Design, Photography and Animation at third level. But it's only in recent years when I became a husband and a father that I rediscovered working with and experiencing photography and fine art printing. My greatest inspiration comes from the Irish landscape, the ever changing light, the night sky, our ancient archaeological history and the sea that shapes our dramatic coastlines.

4. Ros Harvey

Ros Harvey was brought up in Malin, on the wild Inishowen peninsula in Co. Donegal, Ireland. Here she paints her most powerful images of high seas, waves, rocks and skies. Her favourite medium is soft pastels although she uses watercolour, oils and makes mono-prints, etchings on copperplate and linocuts. Ros is a Member of the Royal Ulster Academy and the Pastel Society of Ireland. She has held major one-man shows, been selected and nominated for awards in many juried exhibitions and has illustrated 7 books. Her works are in many Public and Corporate collections.

5. Tim Stampton

Tim left Canada to study Art in the UK. He joined Ros Harvey in 1988 and together they set up Balilagh Studios. These were a collection of old farm buildings.

Over the years they have re-built and redesigned to accommodate Tim's collection of antique printing presses, their gallery, and working studios. Tim has written and illustrated, with wood engravings, many Limited Edition books based on Irish stories and mythology.

6. Merville Pottery

Merville Pottery was founded in 1976 by Lowry Wasson. Lowry previously trained at the Belfast College of Art & subsequently worked as an apprentice to the Finnish potter Agi Fiel, one of the most highly skilled hand throwers in Europe. The backdrop of Donegal's Inishowen Peninsula provides a ready stock of shapes, colours & textures to draw inspiration from. The ranges of bright, colourful, intriguing glazes used are truly stunning & also very hard wearing. The pottery now employs between 3 & 5 people in the workshop. This small band of dedicated crafts people ensure the pots are produced to a very high quality.

A Unique & Inspiring Journey

We are a group of Artists and Craft workers who live and work in the Inishowen Peninsula.

Tourists and Visitors are welcome to visit our studios and galleries along the Art & Craft Trail. This is a unique opportunity to view each of us creating our individual products, against the dramatic backdrop of the Inishowen Peninsula in County Donegal.

Each workshop is situated near some of the most stunning attractions in Inishowen.

Our clean air, our unspoiled landscape, our rugged coastline and our cleansing waters, inspire us to create pieces of original beauty just for you.
